

Blaize and Yotta Advance $56M Smart Public Safety Deployment, Driving AI-Powered Video Surveillance as a Service Rollout Across South Asia

September 30, 2025

Initial shipments underway, with full-scale deployment across 250,000 public safety and monitoring endpoints through 2026

EL DORADO HILLS, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Sep. 30, 2025-- Blaize Holdings, Inc. (NASDAQ: BZAI, NASDAQ: BZAIW) ("Blaize"), a leader in programmable, energy-efficient edge AI computing, today revealed that Yotta Data Services \("Yotta"\), India's leading sovereign AI, sovereign cloud infrastructure, and platform services provider, is Blaize's end customer under its \$56 million edge AI initiative announced on June 30, 2025.

Through this partnership, the Blaize AI Platform is powering Yotta's Hybrid AI infrastructure, transforming more than 250,000 cameras to deliver real-time insights at scale across India. The rollout began earlier this year, and deployments are planned through 2026. The initiative brings together the Blaize AI Platform and Yotta's digital infrastructure to deliver scalable, AI-powered video surveillance as a service (VSaaS) and analytics that strengthen public safety and security across the region.

Yotta is launching its VSaaS platform in India and will quickly expand to other geographies including the Middle East region.

"Our work with Blaize is accelerating, and we're excited to build on this momentum into next year," said Darshan Hirandani, Chairman and Co-founder at Yotta. "With its unique programmability, multimodal performance, and seamless integration, the Blaize AI Platform gives us the flexibility to scale our Hybrid AI infrastructure and unlock new opportunities for enterprises and public sector organizations across the region."

"Blaize's partnership with Yotta marks a new chapter in Hybrid AI infrastructure, bringing programmability, intelligence, and security to scale," said Dinakar Munagala, Co-founder and CEO of Blaize. "With the Blaize AI Platform and Yotta's infrastructure, we're not only delivering real-time analytics for public safety and enterprises in India but also establishing a scalable model that can be replicated worldwide."

Key capabilities of the deployment will include:

- AI-powered video surveillance as a service (VSaaS) for enterprises and government agencies
- Real-time edge AI analytics for traffic management, license plate recognition, and public safety
- Seamless integration between edge inference and centralized cloud analytics
- Scalable architecture designed to support national-level smart infrastructure

The collaboration between Blaize and Yotta marks a significant step forward in the adoption of AI-powered smart infrastructure, enabling governments and enterprises to modernize security operations with cloud-native intelligence.
